TRUSTEES' MEETING.

Present, Messrs. Campbell, Jennings, Parcher and Watson.

Demands amounting to $179.50 previously referred to the finance committee, were reported back favorably and ordered paid.

Application was received from George B. Mock to oil C street, between First and Second streets and between Second and Third streets, by private contract under city specifications. Application was granted to become effective upon payment of fees as required by ordinance.

On motion, a resolution awarding and selling to the Adam Phillips Company, of Los Angeles, the $5000 issue of Fire Apparatus Bonds, was read and adopted. The clerk was instructed to return their certified checks to the unsuccessful bidders for said bonds.

On motion the contract for the printing of the bonds was awarded to the Union Lithograph Company, of Los Angeles, at a price not to exceed sixty-five dollars.

Application of C. F. Parker to improve a portion of First street, presented at the meeting of April 17th, and referred back to have width of walk changed from four to five feet, was received back with change required, and request granted. The street superintendent was authorized to secure the necessary apparatus for testing oil for streets and to incur the expense necessary to make asphalt tests.

FLOWER CARNIVAL.

The Spring Flower Carnival, under the auspices of the Southern California Horticultural Society will be held in Morley's Grand Avenue Rink, beginning Wednesday evening, May 1, and continuing five days.

There will be thousands of roses, carnations, sweet peas and plants and ferns of every description, making this the most comprehensive and attractive exhibit of its kind ever held in Southern California.

A beautiful little May Queen with her Fairies will preside over the festivities. There will be inviting refreshment booths attended by charming maidens in festive costumes, and a large orchestra will furnish suitable music.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION.

Meets at Redlands this week. Glendale sends as delegates Mrs. Gaylord, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Elias Ayers.

RESUME OF GLENDALE LIBRARY WORK FOR FIRST YEAR.

The Glendale Library and reading room was opened on February 26, 1906, under the auspices of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, which secured as a nucleus a state traveling library sent out by the State Library at Sacramento.

Contributions of literature, furniture, pictures and other necessary articles, have been received during the year from many citizens and the Club library, aside from the fifty-volume state libraries secured from time to time, now numbers over two hundred volumes and many hundred magazines. The library room, which is open to the public on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from three to five o'clock, presents an attractive appearance made possible by the contributions and furniture from various interested parties.

The rent for the room has been contributed by citizens, which fact has made it possible for the ladies to carry on the work.

The report of the soliciting committee, Mrs. Goode, Mrs. Guenthart and Mrs. Pack, will appear elsewhere. Aside from this money raised there has also been taken in at the reading room twenty-seven dollars and thirty-seven cents ($27.37), of which thirteen dollars and seventy-two cents ($13.72) is fines on overdue literature. All contributions of money, literature and other articles have been acknowledged through these columns. Aside from the room rent and janitor hire the actual expenses for the year have been three dollars and eighty cents ($3.80). This includes stationery and some necessary small articles.

The Tuesday Afternoon Club has held all possible meetings at the library room as a matter of economy. Books have been packed and unpacked, numbered and stamped, labels printed and pasted on books by the attendant during his unoccupied moments. Various ladies of the club have given time at the library during the attendant's two weeks' vacation. The library has been visited during the year by Miss Prentiss and Miss Kumli, the two library organizers kept in the field at the expense of the state. These ladies urge that the library be made a public one under the control of the city government.

During the year various suggestions have been made concerning the continuance of library work in Glendale and it is most desirable that the city should assume the responsibility of this work, which has, during this first year of its existence been faithfully fostered by the state and the Tuesday Afternoon Club, whose members have not the necessary time to give to the undertaking to make it the useful and creditable institution which our city should now demand.

Steps have been taken by the city trustees to pass an ordinance to establish a public library, and it is hoped by those who have studied the matter that our people will take advantage of the opportunity to secure a Carnegie library, 10 per cent only of the amount of the gift, which is made in proportion to the assessed value of the town property, it is required to be raised annually by taxation.

LILLIAN S. WELLS,
Library Secretary.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CONCERT.

No, it was not a Presbyterian concert, but let that pass; it was a concert for the benefit of the Presbyterian church. It was held at Masonic Hall, Friday evening, of last week, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, and it was a great success from every point of view. The stage was tastefully decorated with Banksia roses, Marguerites, plumosus and pot-potted plants. The roses were put to a happier use in the form of bouquets, which were carried to the lady performers in armfuls by a little fairy, who played her part to perfection. The audience filled the large hall comfortably and it is safe to assert that no one was disappointed in a single number on the program. The majority of the performers were strangers to our people, but they carried away with them many hearty expressions of appreciation. We should like to note in particular the merits of some of the numbers, but all were so thoroughly well rendered and so heartily enjoyed, that we would not know where to begin. This seemed to be the spirit of the audience also, for everything was encored. After the musical program was rendered, refreshments were served in the ante rooms. If we should yield to the temptation to particularize, we might truthfully say that, perhaps, the greatest success of the evening was the neat little impromptu speech by Mrs. Dan Campbell, president of the Ladies' Aid, in which she gracefully thanked all who had lent their assistance in making the affair a success. She did not even neglect the swell ushers in dress suits who played their parts admirably.

NEW BUILDINGS.

Mr. Fred Maier is building a new house on Oak street.

Mr. Newton has begun the erection of his new house on Second street between A and Verdugo Road.

N. S. Jonah is building on Fourth street near A, a five-room cottage which will be a valuable addition to the improvements of that neighborhood.

Frank Sauer's new residence on Third street, is being pushed along rapidly. It is a story and a half structure with five rooms and all modern conveniences.

Mr. N. F. Reynolds, who recently bought of F. W. and J. F. McIntyre, a lot 150 feet square, on the corner of Third and B streets, is building a two-story, seven-room house upon the same. The building has a concrete foundation, large cellar room, open porches and other features for convenience, which constitute an up-to-date residence.

Mr. Reynolds is also planning another residence on the same lot.

Woman's Opportunity

One by one the ancient barriers with which custom hedged man in during those early days of the race, when the distinctions of sex were not so closely drawn as they have become since, are gradually being swept away by the swelling tide of feminine progress, until but little remains for the protection of the male mortal save his fleetness of foot and dullness of perception. Nature has curiously combined these two functions in the male human creature, so happily that he may, under favorable circumstances, remain for many years in possession of his freedom. A man can run faster than a woman in the first place. In the second place his dullness of perception stands him in good stead, so that he frequently fails to note the danger of his position when the enemy insidiously assails him. Thus he does not give the fatal evidence of fear, which would result in his certain and immediate doom, but his faculties gradually become atrophied until he is absorbed in the new condition almost insensibly.

This all has allusion to the fact that certain club ladies in New York have decided that it is right for woman to propose marriage. At first glance we trembled for our sex, but upon taking sober second thought conclude that possibly life for the creature Man will still be worth living!

Flint and La Follette

Senator Frank Flint has been expressing himself in an interview as an admirer of President Roosevelt, and as in favor of the latter's policies. This is certainly commendable, but scarcely noteworthy. The Republican official who on the Pacific coast should express himself otherwise, would be courting a swift return to the obscurity of private life, and Mr. Flint is not understood to be looking that way.

A day or two later Senator La Follette comes along and in a public talk includes his colleague from California in his anathema of the forty senators who voted against his railroad bill in the last congress. This, however, does not prove much of a case against Senator Flint; the proposed railroad legislation of Senator La Follette may or may not be desirable in its nature. We are naturally a little suspicious as to the rightness of the one man who has an opinion contrary to that of forty of his peers, in a matter of legislation. We have no doubt as to Mr. La Follette's good intentions nor as to his knowledge of railroad conditions, but there is a possibility that the remedy he suggests is not the one long sought. On the other hand, it would be unreasonable to expect Senator Flint to be found outside the railroad ranks when it comes to a final line up on any important railroad legislation. He was elected by railroad influences, and has a natural sentiment of gratitude to the power that lifted him from obscurity to one of the highest positions in our government.

Professions of admiration for President Roosevelt do not amount to much under certain conditions. We have not forgotten how the Republicans of the California legislature that elected Mr. Flint senator, after going thro a campaign in which Roosevelt was practically the issue, turned almost unanimously a joint resolution endorsing the president's railroad policy!

A Higher Standard of Honor

Vice-president Fairbanks, at Des Moines, Iowa, the other night, delivered an address in which he had much to say, and, of course, said it well, about "Justice in Trade," referring particularly to trade in the larger sense, as between nations. Probably he dwelt upon common honesty between man and man also, but of that we have no report. President Roosevelt has many times insisted upon the necessity for honesty and fair dealing as between individuals, insisting upon the self evident proposition that reforms in government, to be permanent in their nature, must be founded upon the honesty of the individual units composing our population. If people do not practice honesty in the daily transaction of business affairs, they cannot be depended upon for an honest, patriotic government. In everyday life there is so much juggling with the truth, so many excuses found readily for departure from the spirit of common honesty, that the watcher on the housetop looking toward the East for the millennial dawn, may as well give up his vigil until he can see some evidence of it from the average level of daily life.

In our own small community, one might with no great diligence gather together many incidents tending to prove that the standard of business integrity is none too high. We have in mind a case in which one man gave his word to another that he would lease to him a certain piece of property for a specified sum. Before the lease was executed he increased the agreed price, claiming that another party had offered him a higher figure than the one he had agreed to accept.

In another instance, the owner of another piece of property agreed to sell for a certain price and accepted a small payment in hand to bind the bargain. The seller wished a larger deposit, but the would-be purchaser asserted that he was "a man of his word," etc., etc. The seller, acting in good faith, made preparations for removal and even gave a considerable extension in time. Then a few days before the date fixed for the completion of the contract, the seller learned that the purchaser had entered into a contract to take another piece of property instead of the one he had agreed to take, and had made his small deposit on. The report proved to be true; there was no excuse given by the purchaser except that he had been offered something better! He took his chances on having to defend himself in a suit at law, knowing that the average citizen would rather submit to being robbed than go thro the vexatious course of a legal contest.

In cases of this kind there is generally a second dishonest party to the transaction; and that is the agent, who, knowing that a man has given his word or entered into a contract to do a certain thing, considers that "business" justifies him in tempting a weak and wobbly fellow creature to break his agreement.

Written contracts are necessary in many of our business transactions, not because "all men are liars," but because of the infirmity of the average memory, and to prevent misunderstandings as well as to insure honesty. But the business man whose unqualified promise cannot be relied upon, is unfit to do business or to associate with honest men.

THE TROPICO ART TILE CO.

That the people of this vicinity might have at least some slight conception of a great work that is being carried on in our midst we present herewith an account which we hope will at least suggest to our readers the things being accomplished at the factory of the Tropico Art Tile Company.

An enterprise of this magnitude was not built up in a day and this factory has known many vicissitudes, as many of our residents will remember. Its foundation was laid about five years ago, but the promises of its promoters were not fulfilled, nor their hopes realized, until within the last two years, when the company passed into the hands of the present management. The factory covers an area of four or five acres, and the nature of the work requires that the building be of the most substantial character, hence brick and cement are the materials used almost exclusively, nearly the whole structure having cement floors. Outside of the factory, along the side track within the factory yard, stood empty and loaded cars. From the former the loads of rough clay have been taken and dumped into bins; others have not been unloaded since they left quarries in Kentucky, from whence comes the vitrified clay, or possibly, from Elsinore from which California point much raw material is received. Feldspar and ground flint are brought from Connecticut. There are promising California deposits in view, but as yet they are only "prospects." The clay is crushed and water added, then thoroughly mixed and kept in constant agitation and passed through a series of five sieves, the mesh of the finest being 120 to the inch. The mixture is passed again through an ingenious arrangement of cloth frames in a connected series, the mass under great pressure being forced through the cloth. This rids it of all particles of grit and the resulting substance is of the fineness of flour, massed into mats the size of the sieves, about 18 inches square by an inch and a half in thickness. These mats of the consistency of putty are not ready yet for the hand of the moulder. They still fall short of the fine requirements of the tile maker. Notwithstanding the processes thru' which it has passed and the apparent smoothness of the product, it must yet be further refined. It is now dried in the furnaces, taken out and put through a machine revolving at the rate of 2000 revolutions per minute, ground again to a fine flour of like consistency and put into bins. This swiftly revolving machine is provided with powerful magnets to draw out and remove from the clay passing over them, every particle of iron contained in the mixture. Were this precaution not taken much of the work that has passed thru' the whole process of conversion into the finished product, would have to be rejected on the final examination, because of some mineral speck that would mar the work. The dry powdered clay is now ready to be moulded into tiles of whatever size or shape desired.

There are still mixtures to be made and due proportions to be observed and a nicety of work in the way of weighing out the proper quantities here and there is most essential, as mistakes here are expensive. In the moulding room are presses capable of a pressure of 60 to 90 tons. One of these sets down its immense pressure on a mold in which are cast 64 of the small tile (an inch or less in diameter) at once. Speaking of the mixing of the clay after it has been thoroughly pulverized and purified, it should be explained that there are two kinds of tile at this stage of the process: the vitrified and the plastic. The former is as hard when baked, as flint, the latter is porous. The former is used for the enameled work and the latter for the tile which are colored throughout and must, therefore, be absorbent. While the process described above is the most general in use, there are some clays which are naturally so plastic that they cannot be purified by the filtering process, but must be cleaned by heat, which is the original method in vogue before the filtering scheme was thought out. To do this the ground wet clay is spread out on a pressure bed and heat passed thru' it. Clay in which feldspar and flint exist, is easily filtered. In the saggar department the saggers or clay frames (boxes) to contain the clay while being baked, are being made by the simple pottery process. There is a warm room for drying the clay gradually before it goes in the kilns, for this baking process must be carried on with extreme care, so that it shall not be done too quickly and result in a cracked product.

There are six conical brick kilns extending from floor to roof, and we were informed that more must soon be constructed. The saggers are packed in here piled tier upon tier and when the kilns are closed the oil is turned on in the burners and immense heat generated. The fumes of sulphur acid gas must be carefully excluded, the edges of the saggers must be finished with flint to prevent them from fusing together in the great heat, the contents of each sagger must be packed so as not to touch the edges, etc.; in fact, at every turn some small but material detail must be carefully looked after. When it comes to coloring and enameling, one runs up against a trade secret. Every one of the fifteen art tile factories in the United States has its own particular formula. When the mixture is made, the foreman locks the door of his room and everybody is excluded until the process is worked out. The secret is known probably not to more than two of the officials of the concern.

The application of the enamel is an apparently simple affair; the operator dips the tile into basin of the liquid and it comes out covered with the beautiful tint or combination of colors desired. Then, of course, it must be properly dried and baked. Fashions change very frequently and quickly in art tile as in other things. In the innumerable samples of beautiful work here, many are shown that are entirely out of vogue, although at one time in great demand. Here is a beautiful intaglio of the head of Joe Jefferson as Rip Van Winkle; the sort of thing that people would have paid money to look at fifty years ago—a real work of art, a beautiful creation—but no longer in demand! The craze is for the dull colors and many fine specimens are shown here of the work being turned out now to meet the popular demand. It consists of imitations of leather, the alligator markings and similar creations in dull browns, greens, etc. The "Nearer to Nature" fad is now the thing, and it is beautiful work that is being turned out in answer to the demand. Many of the rougher products for exterior work, consisting of tiles about ten inches square and an inch and a half thick, look like sections of cork with a good coat of varnish over it. The demand for this kind of tile for exterior use is growing rapidly, as it is wanted for the finishing off of the reinforced concrete structures now so popular.

It will mean much for the Tropico factory if the demand for this work increases, as the Elsinore quarries furnish the clay from which these rough outside tile are made. The demand for set patterns is not very great. The architects figure out their "color schemes" and the tile are made to order.

A large demand for a green tile for outside work comes from San Francisco. Until the Tropico factory came into the field with its products, San Francisco sent East, generally to Zanesville, Ohio, for what was needed in this line. One hears the phrase "Encaustic tile" used considerably, but as a matter of fact there is very little of this tile made in the United States. The encaustic is really an inlaid tile, made by a comparatively slow and, therefore, expensive process. None of it is made at Tropico, altho' it would be made there did the demand justify it. In going over the factory one is impressed with an idea of the nicety and exactness of the work. So many things are to be taken into consideration that the mere theorist turned out by the universities, is very likely to come to grief in the bitter field of experience. One thing to be guarded against is a mistake in the consistency and compression of two certain mixtures, which must be so nicely balanced that they will dry out alike in the same time; the glaze and the body must correspond in this respect, so that there shall be no shrinkage.

The necessities of the trade demand that a large supply of the finished product be kept on hand and there are many barrels of tiles stored in the factory. At the same time there are orders on file for work for many months ahead. The force at present consists of nearly 100 employees, many of them young women and girls who find the work required of them light and fairly remunerative.

The officers of the company are: H. Lindsay, president; E. M. Durant, secretary and general manager, F. E. Wilde, superintendent of the factory.

Nothing is sold at retail here and the work is such that it is necessary to exclude visitors as a rule. The News is indebted to Supt. F. H. Wilde for the courtesy extended to its representative and for the information, a portion of which is here hurriedly imparted to our readers.

DENZIL-JENNINGS BADLY BURNED

Denzil Jennings while assisting his father, H. A. Jennings in the latter's blacksmith shop on San Fernando road, Wednesday afternoon, sustained severe burns about the head, face and arms by the explosion of a gasoline brazier, used in repairing bicycles.

Mr. Jennings and Guy Buttrick, who was also assisting in the shop, realizing the imminent danger of Denzil placed him in a large tub, filled with water, that was standing near the shop. This prompt action succeeded in extinguishing the flames which were rapidly consuming the poor boy's clothing. Denzil was then removed to his residence nearby and local applications were made which alleviated his sufferings until the arrival of Dr. A. L. Bryant and Dr. R. E. Chase of Glendale.

The physicians anticipate no serious results from the burns.

FREE LIBRARY BUILDING.

Several months since Hon. W. C. B. Richardson donated the use of a frame building, to be used for library purposes. The Thursday Afternoon Club and the members of the Library Association of the Club, took the matter up and decided to render the building, which is 22 feet wide, a desirable one in which to place the fifty books of the State Training library and the 300 other books donated by the citizens of Tropico and by the Thursday Afternoon Club.

R. N. Smedly very kindly donated his services, Alfred Engelhardt donated a goodly amount of lumber and ere long the interior of the building, under Mr. Smedly's hammer, assumed the neat appearance so much desired by the ladies. Green burlap was used on the walls, while a light cream burlap furnished the ceiling decorations. Quarter-inch moulding, stained a dark brown, was tacked throughout the interior and completed the very pretty scheme of decorations. The book shelves and finishings were also stained a pretty brown. Dr. J. O. Garmon made a fine counter to be used in receiving the books. Mr. Engelhardt donated sufficient lumber to make a library table. Mr. Newhouse, of the Tropico Manufacturing Company, made the table, donating his work. This table is a beautiful piece of workmanship. J. B. Hickman made, donated and put in place a large door-step and a board walk connecting the street and sidewalk. Mr. Hickman also donated all of the stains, paints and oils.

Miss Zetta Hopkins made several typewritten catalogues of the library books.

D. H. Imler donated stain and steel brads for tacking on moulding.

James R. Maxwell donated and hauled one load of gravel.

J. A. Logan donated glass for all the windows in the building that required replacing.

W. R. Hoopell gave his services as expressman and aided the ladies very much.

Mrs. D. H. Imler donated $1.50 and Mrs. August Randolph 25 cents and purchased dainty lace draperies which Miss Imler made and placed at the pretty quaint casement windows.

The other expenses necessary for repairing the building were liquidated by the Thursday Afternoon Club. A subscription was taken to purchase linoleum which was placed on the floor of the building.

Mullen & Bluet, leading clothiers of Los Angeles, donated $5.00, and the Los Angeles Furniture Company, in Los Angeles, $5.55 towards the linoleum, which cost $30.55.

There were twenty-four other subscribers contributing in amounts varying from 50 cents to one dollar, all making the sum total mentioned.

The ladies of the Thursday Afternoon Club are justly proud of the pretty library building, as it presents a neat, clean and pretty appearance.

The library is open for the circulation of books Monday and Saturday afternoons.

NEW ENGLAND DINNER.

THE GLENDALE NEWS

Local Happenings

Mr. W. E. Cooley of Pasadena, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. F. L. Church, of Orange street.

Miss Mollie E. Morse of Los Angeles, was the guest of Mrs. C. E. Parker at Somerset Farm, Thursday.

Mrs. Bomer, of Chicago, and Mrs. John Peckham, of Los Angeles, lunched with Mrs. D. W. Hunt on Tuesday last.

Mr. Thomas O. Pierce, who has been suffering from a combined attack of the mumps and La Grippe, is able to be about again, after an illness of several weeks.

Rev. Norton made the trip on the observation car to a number of the Beach towns on Wednesday, in company with a number of old friends from Iowa. It was delightful.

We are glad to report that Mr. Puckett, whose leg was broken in an accident here a few weeks ago, and who is at the Good Samaritan hospital, is now getting along satisfactorily.

Mrs. Newton and daughter, Miss Alberta, who have been the guests of Mr. Will R. Newton of M street for the last two months, return to-day to their home in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. W. R. Norton, of Oxnard, Mrs. C. C. Norton and little daughter, Vivian, of the city, Mrs. M. E. Norton, of Hollywood, spent the day at the home of pastor and family on Thursday. A joyous occasion.

Mr. S. J. Reid and Mr. L. A. Jones returned last week from a visit to Escondido, where they spent several days. They found the country looking well and the outlook promising for good crops, but do not seem inclined to leave Glendale for that section yet.

Grading and oiling Fourth street is being delayed, waiting on the electric road to lower their tracks, which they agree to do "sometime soon."

It is unfortunate that the work should be delayed in this manner, as the street has already been torn up for a longer time than seems necessary.

At the "Priory" last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Pack entertained Bishop Johnson, Rev. George Eley and wife, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Lewis and Mr. J. L. Whitaker, at luncheon. The house was tastefully decorated and the table garnished with handsome American Beauty roses. An elegant five-course luncheon was served, and any one who had the pleasure either of dining at the Priory, or sitting at table with Bishop Johnson, may know without telling that the occasion was an enjoyable one for all concerned.

At St. Mark's church on Sunday there was present a large congregation. After administering the Holy Rite of Confirmation, Bishop Johnson preached a most eloquent sermon, the central thought of which was "Reach always for the highest things." After service the bishop, accompanied by the Rev. G. and Mrs. Eley, was entertained at luncheon by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Pack at the Priory.

Mr. Charles E. Stanley has returned from a trip to the Morongo mining district in San Bernardino County. He is enthusiastic over the mineral possibilities of that section, which lies 35 miles north of the railroad, and northeast of Banning.

Mr. T. O. Pierce has an interest in a mine in that district which Mr. Stanley thinks is a very promising property, an idea which seems justified by the numerous specimens of gold-bearing rock which he brought back with him. He also brings back as trophies gleaned from the sunburnt desert, the rattles of three rattlesnakes, which he encountered.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES.

At the election of officers for the Epworth League, at the home of Mrs. C. E. Barker, the following were chosen: President, M. Z. Remsburg; First Vice President, Mrs. Bemerson; Second Vice President, Lilly Ward; Third Vice President, Lillian Shropshire; Fourth Vice President, Mary Blackburn; Secretary, Ann Grant; Organist, Miss Hendershot; Treasurer, Loren Grant. The league is doing good work.

We are all very much indebted to the aid rendered by Mr. O. S. Grant, of Allen, Nebraska, while he and his excellent family have been spending a few weeks at the home of their father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. S. Grant, of Sixth and Verdugo. Mr. Grant has aided in Sunday School and League services very much. Always being willing to render any assistance possible. Wish he and his could remain with us.

Under the leadership of Mr. T. W. Watson and Miss Hendershot our Sunday School has been doing grand work. Some new departures have been made to the great benefit of the school. We are now having an average attendance of about 150.

Mrs. L. E. Brown and Mrs. W. B. Gaylord were sent as delegates to the State convention at Redlands this week.

The district convention of the W. F. M. S. will meet in our church, May 22 and 23. There will be present more than one hundred delegates. It will be an occasion of great interest and lasting good will result to the cause of Christ by the coming of these elect ladies. They will have the support of all the community, we are sure.

The prayer meeting on Tuesday evening, at the home of E. A. Turner and wife, was well attended and of deep interest. On next Tuesday evening, May 7, Dr. S. A. Thomson, P. E., of the district, will preach and hold the grand conference services at 7:30.

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees for the church a splendid showing was made as to the financial condition for the year.

Preaching, Sabbath at 11 o'clock and 7:30.

Subjects for the day: "Doing the Will of God Will Result in Knowing the Truth as it Is in Jesus."

Evening, "Inside the Gates."

A cordial welcome extended to all. The Standard Bearers will meet in the Sunday School room on Wednesday, May 8, at 3:45 p. m.

Notice

Glendale Sanitarium, W. Ray Simpson, Manager.

DECORATE FOR THE SHRINERS.

Citizens are requested to decorate their homes on Monday in honor of our visitors. Let fly the flags and bunting or anything else that will express it.

SHRINER CONCERT.

The largest audience that ever enjoyed an indoor performance in Glendale, filled the Skating rink last Wednesday evening on the occasion of the concert for the benefit of the Shriners' reception fund. There were fully 500 people present.

So much talent has come to Glendale recently that, taken in connection with the reliable supply we have been accumulating in the past, it is now possible to get up a first-class concert in very short notice.

The music by the orchestra, under the leadership of Mrs. E. S. Ayres, of Tropico, was an excellent feature of the performance. Two singers, new to the majority of our people, but now residents of Glendale, made their debut on our local stage. One of them, Mr. Spence Robinson, who is well known in Los Angeles musical circles as the possessor of a magnificent tenor voice, sang with great feeling "Bonnie Sweet Bessie," and "Because." The other is Mr. Susemihl, whose splendid bass was heard to good advantage in "The Bandelier," and the "Armorer's Song." None the less enjoyable than these was his rendering of "The Sweetest Flower."

Mrs. Bryant sang with great sweetness and expression "The Flower Girl" and "Loch Lomond."

The clarinet solo, by Miss Doyle, was greatly enjoyed. Little Miss Monroe brought down the house by her singing and her Irish gig. The duet by Mrs. Bryant and Mr. Hezmalheich was also received appreciatively and encored. Mr. Fuller added to the evening's pleasure by two selections on the piano, played with his usual skill and fine feeling.

Altogether the concert was a great success artistically and financially and a credit to the performers and to the hard-worked committee that got it up on such short notice.

Editor Glendale News:

We all may differ in opinion or even question another's judgment, but when it comes to making charges of dishonesty or incompetency, we should be able to back them up with facts.

It is not enough for the editor of the Valley Independent to say "by what hocus pocus" a certain contract "may have been changed." He should say it HAS been changed and prove it.

It is about time that editor gave us a rest on the subject of taxpayers' money being wasted, or proof that the following statements are untrue.

1. The contract for public printing is today just as it was the day he signed it.

2. The Valley Independent has presented no bid for the public printing at any price.

3. The trustees have no agreement for public printing after the expiration of the present contract.

4. No one has the right to say what the next contract will provide for.

There will be no more competition when we make the next contract than there was when we made the present one, but as we will be dealing with an altogether different individual, the chances are that it will be more favorable to the city.

T. W. WATSON.

Hisey of Iowa

Iowa is a great state. It raises more corn and cranks to the acre than some other states, altho as to the latter crop, California is a close second. The trouble with Iowa is, that she sends so many of her good citizens to California. Perhaps some of the other kind come here also, which may account for some other things.

But Iowa has one premier crank named Hisey; Alfred Townsend Hisey for long. Mr. Hisey has been nominated for the Presidency (by himself). But he stands on a platform which makes him force to be reckoned with, and for the lightsomeness of the nation, we hope he will not be ignored. He recognizes the fact that an unmarried man has no business aspiring to the Presidency of the United States, and in order to thoroughly qualify himself for the high position to which he aspires, he intends to get married before he is saddled with the cares of state. Now here is disclosed a secret of Mr. Hisey's greatness and originality, which, by the way, are the same thing. He proposes to leave the selection of the future mistress of the White House to a vote of his countrymen and countrywomen; and, like the honorable man that he is, he agrees to abide by their decision.

In the voting no one is barred; and we suggest in this connection that the men of our country could pay no more graceful compliment to the other sex than by turning the matter over to the ladies entirely, resolutely restraining from casting a single vote on this all-important question.
